Do you know how important your oral health is to your overall health?

- Periodontal disease is an inflammation of the gums that can lead to infection and the eventual breakdown of the bones, gums, and connective tissue that support your teeth. Periodontal disease can also have a negative impact on diabetes and cardiovascular disease, and can lead to pre-term, low birth-weight babies.
- Oral cancer is particularly dangerous because in its early stages it may not be noticed by the patient, as it can frequently progress without producing pain or other symptoms. Left untreated, oral cancer can lead to serious medical complications and even death.
- Tooth decay is damage that occurs when bacteria in your mouth makes acids that eat away at your teeth, which can result in a hole in a tooth (called a cavity) that can lead to a painful toothache, infection, and tooth loss.

Good oral health is important at all stages of your life.
